

Chief Executive magazine recognizes two San Antonio businesses on its Mid-Market list

Jan 16, 2014, 12:17pm CST

Chief Executive magazine has recognized San Antonio's Armando Montelongo Cos. and InGenesis on its Mid-Market Elite list of 100 exceptional companies.

The list recognizes companies between $10 million and $1 billion that exhibit at least one of the following characteristics: superior growth, a track record of innovation, an exceptional corporate culture, charismatic leadership, and a compelling business model.

Armando Montelongo, led by CEO Armando Montelongo, is a real estate investment firm. InGenesis, led by CEO Veronica Edwards, provides healthcare staffing.

"The Middle Market often gets overlooked, in the shadows of big corporations and small business," Chief Executive's editor in chief J.P. Donlon said in a written statement. "While accounting for just 3 percent of U.S. companies, the middle market is responsible for one-third of all jobs and 36 percent of U.S. payrolls. The Mid-Market Elite represent the best within this critical sector."

Source: San Antonio Business Journal